UNIQUE SNORKEL FLOAT PREVENTS SNORKELS AND MASKS FROM SINKING FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Fort Lauderdale, Florida: 4th June 2016: Never lose your snorkel and mask again! Joanna D. is very excited to announce the launch of the Snorkelbuoy®, a brand new and UNIQUE snorkel float that will keep a snorkel afloat on the surface of the water. If a mask is securely attached with a snorkel-keeper, the mask will float too.

If you've ever accidentally dropped your mask and snorkel into the water, you'll know how quickly they sink. Unless you have quick reflexes and grab them immediately, or have a special neoprene mask strap (which unfortunately only keeps the mask afloat for a few seconds before it sinks), they will be gone in seconds. Having lost a couple of masks and snorkels while snorkeling, Joanna was frustrated that there wasn't a single product that would stop this from happening, and decided to invent one. Losing a mask and snorkel while snorkeling, SCUBA diving or cleaning the hull of a boat, is inconvenient, costly (a good mask and snorkel can cost over $100, much more if you have a prescription mask or an underwater camera mount on it), and contributes to marine pollution on the ocean bed, damaging or killing coral and marine life. Snorkelbuoy® is a specially designed snorkel-float that will keep the snorkel and attached mask floating on the surface. Simply insert the snorkel until it protrudes from the top of the Snorkelbuoy®, and forget about it. The design (red with diagonal white stripe) is similar to the Diver Down flag, and is easily visible on the surface. While not a safety device, a floating mask and snorkel should alert a vigilant dive boat captain that someone may be in trouble. Snorkelboy® GLOW! is coming soon, designed for night divers. Snorkelbuoy® does not affect a SCUBA diver's buoyancy, and can be used as a dive-reel float, an underwater camera float (instead of buoyancy foam), or a reef marker buoy. Joanna, an advanced SCUBA diver and avid snorkeler, says that when she goes out snorkeling from a boat, she doesn't worry about losing her mask and snorkel any more – she just tosses them into the water before she dives in, and there they are, floating, just waiting for her. She also has one on her underwater camera strap. Snorkelbuoy® is available for purchase at www.snorkelbuoy.net. Trademarked, patent pending. Every snorkel should have one! ###
